Overview

Marcus Harry is a Barrister specialising in Criminal, Regulatory and Housing law.

Marcus is a well-established criminal barrister with extensive Crown Court experience. He appears for both the Crown and Defence and has been instructed alone as well as led junior counsel.

He also has a wide ranging regulatory practice appearing in the Crown and Magistrates' Court where he both prosecutes and defends.

Marcus has developed a strong practice in social housing law acting for local government, housing associations and tenants in the County Court, High Court and has recently been instructed to appear in the Court of Appeal.

Practice Areas

Criminal

Marcus is a well-established criminal barrister with extensive Crown Court experience. He appears for both the Crown and Defence and has been instructed alone as well as led junior counsel.

Marcus is regularly instructed in cases of serious sexual assault including rape and historic offences, s.18 woundings, high value frauds, firearms and drugs conspiracies.

He is currently instructed as junior counsel in a £24 million fraud and as junior alone in a county lines drugs conspiracy involving upwards of 5kg of Class A drugs.

Other recent cases include the historic rape and serious sexual assault of a 5-year-old; the wounding of a police officer with a crowbar; violent false imprisonment and degradation of the victim and the two-handed rape of a 13-year-old.

Marcus also has a long-standing interest in cases with a regulatory element, having been instructed by Trading Standards and been involved in DEFRA, HMRC, RSPCA and Local Authority prosecutions. These cases include a farmer prosecuted by DEFRA for fraudulently claiming over £200,000 of EU subsidies; a "cowboy" builder accused of multiple fraud and CPUTR offences (including violence); the prosecution of a (HMO) landlord for multiple health and safety offences; and the possession and supply of counterfeit tobacco on a commercial scale.

Marcus applies his meticulous approach to detail in every case in which he is instructed.

Notable Cases

R v A & B (2016)

Regulatory

Marcus has a wide ranging regulatory practice appearing in the Crown and Magistrates' Court where he both prosecutes and defends.

He has developed a strong practice dealing with trading standards, food hygiene, animal welfare, and taxi licensing prosecutions. He is instructed by HM Revenue and Customs, The Department for Work and Pensions and local authorities alongside regular instructions to defend.

He has a particular interest in fraud cases encompassing consumer protection regulations. He recently defended a builder charged with over 20 offences involving violence used towards elderly complainants. His criminal practice enables him to quickly grasp the issues in cases and provide written advice and prepare for trial.

Notable Cases

Instructed by HMRC to undertake an extensive disclosure exercise in a £10 million fraud.

Prosecution of two defendants in a large scale fraud involving car 'clocking' and multiple victims.

Defence of business owner charged with multiple food hygiene offences.

Prosecution of 'rogue trader' who took deposits for work but failed to deliver.

Housing

Marcus has developed a strong practice in social housing law acting for local government, housing associations and tenants in the County Court, High Court and has recently been instructed to appear in the Court of Appeal.

He regularly receives instructions in possession proceedings involving anti-social behaviour, injunction applications (including gang injunctions and High Court injunctions against "persons unknown") and has a particular interest in cases involving Equality Act 2010 and human rights issues.

He recently appeared in a gang injunction trial lasting six weeks in which injunctions were granted against 17 defendants. He is due to appear before the High Court to argue the legitimacy of granting gang injunctions against prisoners serving lengthy custodial sentences.
